"Tom Sawyer" opens Nov. 8 at RLC Theatre, tickets on sale

BY STACI JOHNSON

ive into a classic adventure with "Tom Sawyer," 7 p.m. Nov. 8-10, and 2 p.m. Nov 11, at the Rend Lake College Theatre. Tickets are on sale now for $12 each by contacting the RLC Box Office at 618-437-5321, Ext. 1467. Visa, MasterCard and Discover are accepted.

Tom Sawyer is a classic tale from the 1800's, filled with comedy, murder, and love. Early in the play, Tom is involved in a love triangle with Becky Thatcher and Amy Lawrence. When Becky breaks up with two-timing Tom, he says, "My heart is broken. This is worse, than having the warts."

Curtis Galloway, of Benton, is playing the role of Tom Sawyer. He says "I love being on stage and love the reactions I get from the audience." One of his favorite parts of the show is when he convinces all of the kids to paint the fence for him. He likes the line he yells at Fen Rogers - played by Tyler Hood of Pinckneyville - "You're about to vex me something certain!"

Huckleberry Finn comes up with a strange remedy for Tom's warts involving a chant and throwing a dead cat. While they are in the cemetery late at night, they are not alone. Doc Robinson is there with Injun Joe and Muff Potter. They are digging up bodies for medical studies. Injun Joe becomes tired of Doc Robinson and kills him. Muff Potter was rendered unconscious during this time and when he comes to, Injun Joe convinces him that he is the murderer. Even during the death scene, there are moments of hilarity, such as when Doc Robinson punches Injun Joe as hard as he can, and Injun Joe looks at him and says "ouch."

John Nalley, of Benton, is playing the role of Injun Joe. He says that Injun Joe is the really scary guy that everybody loves to hates. His favorite scene is the murder scene because it is very delicate. "Don't be out too late! Ghosts haint these parts at night. You be warned!" is his favorite quote of Injun Joe's.

Jon Booker, of Pinckneyville, is playing the role of Doc Robinson. He agrees that the murder scene is the best scene. When he is talking to Muff Potter (Mason Kondoudis of Thompsonville) about why they are digging up the bodies, he says, "We do this for medical studies."

Troy Stickel, of Benton, is playing Huckleberry Finn. He says he enjoys the part of the show where he is explaining to Tom how to get rid of a wart. When Tom asks Huck what he has in his bag, Huck replies, "A man can mind his own business." Stickel said it's one of his favorite lines.

Tom is living with his Aunt Polly (Jessa Poninski of Mt. Vernon). Aunt Polly also has a son named Sid (Cale Smith of Mt. Vernon). She is constantly favoring Tom over her own son. Poninski said she really likes the scene when she throws her shoe at Sid for messing with Little did Injun Joe know, Tom and Huck are witnesses to the murder. The boys swear a blood oath to not tell anyone what they have seen. Tom, Huck, and Tom's friend, Joe Harper, run away to an island to become pirates and later find out the community is searching the river for their bodies. Tom becomes overwhelmed with guilt and devises a plan to return home.

Southern Illinois surrounded by haunted attractions this Halloween

BY BRECCA MULLINAX

t's that time of year again. Halloween is approaching and all the things that come with it:
Hayrides, bonfires, pumpkin patches, new scary movies, and above all else, haunted houses!
Southern Illinois is surrounded by well-done haunted houses for people of all ages to enjoy — some of them even famous!

Approximately an hour west of us, near St. Louis, are three well-known haunted scream parks — The Darkness, The Limp Brewery, and Creepyworld.

Creepyworld in Fenton, Mo., is known as one of the biggest scream parks in America. It has nine different haunted attractions, including a paintball hayride, haunted houses, and a corn maze. It's less than $25 per person ($35 for a speed pass to bypass long lines) and is open Oct. 12-14 and Oct. 19-31.

The Limp Brewery in St. Louis, although said to be just as scary as Creepyworld, may be even more scary since the entire experience takes place underground. The haunted attraction starts by going down a spiral staircase five stories into a creepy world of monsters and special effects. This one happens to be available at a price of only $20 ($30 for a speed pass) and is open the same dates as Creepyworld.

The Darkness, also in St. Louis this fall, is a scary event that gives enthusiasts three things in one. The Darkness package comes with a two-story haunted house, a 3D haunted house, and a Monster Museum. There's also a gift store. The cost of The Darkness is $23 ($30 for a speed pass). It's open every weekend in October, as well as on Halloween.

Thinking of putting all three famous haunted houses in the candy bucket this Halloween? Organizers have thought of that. For $50 ($65 for a speed pass), buyers can get into all three of these scary attractions. Keep in mind there are no refunds.

Don't feel like heading to far out of town this year? Want something a little simpler? There are a few known places right here in the southern Illinois area and on down in Kentucky that can be just as fun. These include the Chittyville Haunted School, Marion Haunted Barn, Jaycee's Haunted House, or Talon Falls.

Chittyville's Haunted School is a great place for people not wanting to travel too far. Located in Herrin, the interesting backstory of being accidently built on top a forgotten cemetery is what draws people to Chittyville's Haunted School. It poses questions for each new comer whether it is really haunted or not. When buying tickets, each customer can include an option for multiple endings, in case one is not enough. With a general admission price of $15 ($5 for each additional ending), it is definitely a place to put on a list of possibilities. Chittyville's Hauntarea's most successful newspapers, "The Progress," with her husband, Clifton Caldwell. With his passing in 2004, the family established the Clifton Caldwell Endowment Scholarship for Rend Lake students. The scholarship looks to help a journalism or math major in need. The math preference is in relationship to their daughter, RLC Mathematics Professor Cindy Caldwell, who continues the family tradition of contributing to the RLCF and her mother's strong belief in education. That tradition — a dedication to education earned Millie Caldwell the coveted RLCF Presidential Award for a board member who displays exceptional service. Some past winners of this award include Dr. Gene Stotlar, Dr. Charles "Bill" Roe, Dr. Robert J. Parks, Dr. Warren Petty, Rich Yunkus, Jim Kelly and Ed Cunningham, who will take over for Kelly as the RLCF Board's Chairman at its next meeting.

Caldwell has been active in three capital campaigns for RLC, spanning nearly two decades from 1980 to 1997 when she helped with a funding challenge to build the RLCF Children's Center on the campus in Ina. She has donated toward scholarships, the RLCF Children's Center, and now, the newest campaign: The Music Addition. She also gives her time. Millie and Cliff Caldwell actively attended RLCF events throughout the years. He was a frequent player at annual RLCF Golf Tournaments and they regularly attended the RLCF Annual Dinner together. Millie Caldwell also attends the RLCF Women's Luncheon and RLCF Scholarship Dinner. Many times Cindy would accompany her.

Pioneer of Cellular Age molds new talent at RLC

BY TYSON HILL

RLC NEWSPAPER STAFF ook around. Chances are every person in the area has a cell Iphone. In today's digital age this is the norm. But looking back 15 to 20 years this was far from the case.

The cell phone didn't begin coming into prominence until the 1990s when technological advancements allowed for much smaller handsets. Over the last 15 years — particularly the past five years — cell phones have evolved into pocket-sized computers with high-resolution cam-

None of this would have been possible without advancements made to landline phones and cellular networks in the 1970s. Enter Rend Lake College's own Ken Whittington, an adjunct instructor of computer science.

A pioneer of the cellular industry, Whittington spent more than 30 years working for Western Electric, establishing cellular networks, working on cellular advancements, and doing a great deal of troubleshooting along the way.

He started out studying applied sciences at SIU-Carbondale. While there, he took a job with Western Electric — a member company of the Bell System and manufacturing arm of AT&T — working with tools for electricians until he began working with telephony under the guidance of a senior Bell Electric employee. He spent the next 10 years working with cellular radio, building and mounting cellular towers all over the country — all of which routed back to a central hub in large cities such as Chicago and New York. It was the nation's first cellular network.

In the early 1980s after more than 15 years spent working on cellular networks — Whittington was sent to Bell Labs, another member of the Bell System, to help their engineers work on digital microwave transmission. In 1983, the Bell System was dissolved under monopoly charges and Western Electric, of which Whittington was still employed, was fully integrated into AT&T.

At this point, Whittington returned to Western Electric and worked in their sales group continuing to make telephone equipment and distributing cellular licenses to entrepreneurs over the next 10 years until

1994 when he and a number of others began acquiring cellular licenses in Russia under another company, MCT. During this time, Russia — which had seen little in the way of technical advancements since World War II — was brought completely up to speed. Once Russia was caught up. Whittington and his team expanded into Uzbekistan and Tajikistan, nations bordering Afghanistan, which proved convenient during the U.S. invasion of Afghanistan, the networks Whittington and his team had established were turned over to U.S. troops, allowing communication on the ground.

Whittington sold his minority partnership of MCT in 2005 and the company dissolved before being purchased and revived by a Dutch company. Following this, he immediately started at RLC, which even now has one of the few programs that fully trains wireless technicians.

When asked about the last decade of advancements to the technology he helped build, Whittington stated that he is "amazed with the progress and very pleased."

He and his wife. Barbara. live in the area. Their son, David, is a software architect who lives in Texas with his wife and two children.

Meet trustee John Kabat

BY B€KA KASH

RLC NEWSPAPER STAFF ewspaper staff member Beka Kash recently sat down with Rend Lake College Board of Trustees Member John Kabat to ask what it's like to be a trustee and a little about what he does when he's not helping to plan the future of the college. Besides serving on the board, Kabat is the agriculture teacher at Mt. Vernon Township High School and has been for 28 years. When he is not busy teaching or attending FFÁ events, Kabat spends his time farming, which he has done for the past 35 years. He resides on his farm in Scheller with his wife of 27 years, Marcia. They have three children — a son, Jacob, and two daughters, Erika and Alicia.

BK: How long have you been on the board?

JK: A year and a half BK: What is your position on the board?

JK: I'm the Secretary. BK: Why did you want to be on the board?

JK: I had several opportunities to teach agriculture at Rend Lake, but I never did. There were several people who asked me to be on the board. I want to help people get educated so they can get jobs and work for our country. So, I decided to take the opportunity to run to be on the board. BK:

What do you see for the future of RLC?

John Kabat

JK: I hope we keep all the programs we currently have and expand. I hope we get better recruiting so more kids will go to college. I think all students should have one to two years of college, at least, before going into the workforce.

BK: Is there anything that the Rend Lake students should know about the board or about what you are currently doing?

JK: The students should know that they can call me or the other board members if they have a complaint. The students have a say so about addressing teachers and about the education they are getting. We work for them to better their education.

BK: Are there any perks or incentives for being on the board?

JK: We don't get paid for being on the board. But three or four of us get to go to nationals in Boston this year where we get to see what other colleges are doing. So, that is a perk.

Thanks to John Kabat for the interview.

Rend Lake College Computer Club seeking new members

BY RHEANNA GRIZZELL

RLC NEWSPAPER STAFF hespians, Horticulture, Theatre, Culinary Arts, and so on several clubs and activities are available to students at Rend Lake College, and another one has begun their re-emergence to campus life.

The computer club, named "RLC³," is diligently working to renew and promote their standing as an available group.

On Sept. 25, faculty members Chris Sink, Martha McCreery, and Ricky Robinson met with other interested faculty and students to discuss the basic information about the club and the events, projects, and goals that the previous club had. The first formal meeting was held on Oct. 2, where they nominated officers and continued to prepare for the progression of the club.

They plan on having events such as LAN parties, fundraisers, field trips, and more. The first occasion will be a LAN party, which is a get-together of people and their computers on a local area network to play games; the information regarding it will be announced as soon as it is organized.

Anyone interested in joining the club or inquiring for more information can contact Chris Edwards at edwardsc0618@warriormail.rlc.edu or Chris Sink at 437-5321, ext. 1798.

RLC Men's Basketball Team

Warriors looking to best historic run in 2013

BY MARK HOPKINS

RLC NEWSPAPER STAFF t's finally October and basketball is just around the corner. The Rend Lake College Warriors basketball team is looking to build on to the success it had last season.

After last year's team reached the National Junior College Athletic Association Championship Tournament for the first time in school history, hopes are high for this year's Warriors.

Rend Lake will be without its All-American point guard from last season, TeNale Roland, who transferred on scholarship to Utah State after the 2011-12 season. Returning to the hard court for RLC this year is Dawson Verhines, a sophomore guard from Woodlawn who averaged 20 points, 13 rebounds and seven assists in 2011-12. Noel Allen, a sophomore forward from Gutttenburg, N.J., averaged 15 points as a freshman and was named All-Great Rivers Athletic Conference. Also returning this year are two

Academic All-Americans:

Guards Dennis Froemling and Jesse Smith, both from Trico High School. Coming off an injury that cost him the 2011-12 season is redshirt freshman Corey Ayala, a guard from Metropolis.

"He's going to be a load," Warriors Head Coach Randy House said about Ayala.

Newcomers to the team include 5-7 point guard Trice Whaley of Jeffersonville, Ind., 6-1 transfer guard Joe Gilmore out of Fairview Heights, 6-1 point guard Stephon Bryant of Louisville, 6-4 guard Jeril Taylor of Louisville, 6-3 guard Cortez Macklin of Louisville, 6-4 forward Montez Buford of Louisville, 6-4 forward Michael Jackson of O'Fallon, 6-4 Alonzo Singletary of Chicago, 6-5 forward Antoine Buchanon of Middleton, Wisc., 6-7 forward Bronson Verhines of Woodlawn, and 6-7 center Montez Williams of East St.

Their first practice was Oct. 1 and the season tips off Nov. 17 with a road game against Illinois Central College in East Peoria.

Fantasy Football Tip for Week 6 -Week 6 is the week to not start Aaron Rodgers. His Packers are going to Houston to play the AFC South-leading Texans and Rodgers hasn't played like his usual self thus far this season. He is ranked outside the top 10 in both passing yards and passer rating. His number one reciever, Greg Jennings, has a groin injury that has bothered him all season, so don't expect him to perform at 100% if at all. These two issues will not be a good combo against the Houston Texans. Wade Phillips' defense is ranked 2nd in passing defense allowing under 200 yards per game, according to ESPN.com. They are also ranked in the top 10 in interceptions. The Packers will look to establish the run against a defense ranked outside the top

I know it sounds crazy, but this is the week to sit Rodgers. - Josh Myers

RLC to host national cross country championships Nov. 10

BY JOSH MYERS

end Lake College is set to host the men's and women's NJCAA Division I Cross Country National Championships, Nov. 10, at Rend Lake Golf Course.

Nearly a hundred teams from around the country will meet and compete for the national championships.

"It's a very exciting event to host. I like how it comes down to one race to determine a national champion, and the athleticism is nothing short of spectacular" said RLC Sports Information Director Nathan Wheeler. "So many championships are suited to a tournament setup or the total points scored over a weekend event. In cross country, it comes down to a single race to crown the men's and women's team and individual national champions. It's an 8K race for the men and a 5K race for the women. I was able to help put the meet together five years ago when our own Ben and Pasca Cheruiyot swept the individual championships. That was fun to watch.'

Wheeler added that the meet is also a great way to showcase southern Illinois to visitors from other parts of the country - many of whom have never been to this area.

The event is completely free to attend. Fans will see the likes of top-ranked teams, Central Arizona College (men's #1) and lowa Central Community College (women's #1), as well as the home team, the Warriors.

Rend Lake hosted the prestigious event in 2007. Lansing Community College was crowned champion on the men's side while Iowa Central won on the women's side. Rend Lake finished fourth in the men's race with Ben Cheruiyot as the champion, and ninth in the women's race with Pasca Cheruiyot coming in first.

RLC will look to bring the trophy back home this time around. The men's team consists of freshmen Wesley Bradshaw of Walsh, Jon Hill of Sparta and Wade Reeves of Evansville; and sophomores Shawn Burke of Matawan, N.J., Dameon Morgan of Edwardsville, Tivosiel Rivera of Swedesboro, N.J. and Holland Sherrer of Bridgetown, N.J.

The women's team consists of freshmen Kiera Deford of Pinckneyville and Christina Murphy of Ellenwood, Ga., as well as sophomores Sammi Bybee of Benton and Kirsten Knapp of DuQuoin.

Halse Anderson takes on eating disorders with Wintergirls

BY RHEANNA GRIZZELL

RLC NEWSPAPER STAFF

Winter is coming, and it certainly isn't about The Game of Thrones. It's about Wintergirls, a chilly fiction novel that will leave you shivering even after you leave its pages.

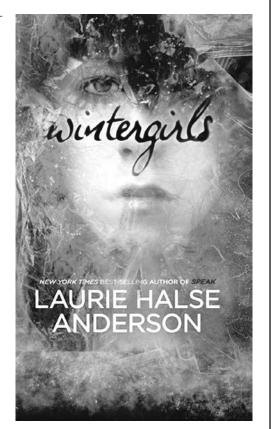

With unique, poetic writing, Laurie Halse Anderson tells the intense story of eating disorders, life struggles, emotional breakdowns, dysfunctional families, and most of all, self-acceptance.

Lia, the main character, and Cassie, her best friend, make a pact to be the skinniest girls in school; they become wintergirls, frozen in a fragile state of mind that could end up killing them both. While Lia counted her calories and exercised vigorously, Cassie struggled with bulimia.

The two friends eventually part ways, and a few months later, Lia is left cold and empty after hearing about Cassie's mysterious death. Lia searches for the truth behind her ex-best friend's demise and is seemingly haunted by her ghost everywhere she goes.

Along with the loss of Cassie and the pursuit of being extremely skinny, Lia must deal with her two separated families, her schoolwork, and her therapeutic sessions. She must deceive all of these people with her monitored weight and intake of food so they will not hospitalize her.

Even though the blizzard of Lia's life is raging all around her, she must find hope within herself and her closest family members to overcome her guilt, her disorder, and her near-death experiences; she must be warm again.

During the summer, I read this book late into the night and early into the morning. It captivates the reader so well with a strong subject matter, an exceptional writing style, and a passionate plot. It is truly a piercing novel you will not forget.

Tutors changing lives with RLC's Adult Literacy Program

tudents looking for a way to use their skills and talents to help someone else may want to consider becoming a volunteer

The Adult Volunteer Literacy program at Rend Lake College is a grantfunded program through the state of Illinois. Students who test below a ninth-grade level in reading or math are assigned a tutor to help them improve in these areas.

To become a volunteer, one must be at least 16 years old and complete 12 hours of training. Training can be done online, in group sessions, or one-onone with Rend Lake's Literacy Specialist, Ali Whittington. Tutors only have to volunteer one hour a week and tutoring sessions are held in public libraries, on the RLC campus or at the Rend Lake College MarketPlace in Mount Vernon.

According to Whittington, recent statistics show that about 525,000 Illinois residents have less than a ninth grade education and 2.3 million residents could benefit from this program. Some of these adults struggle to complete job applications, read maps or instructions, or even read a story to their children. Through tutoring, literacy skills will improve. This leads to improved involvement in children's education, gained employment and more community involvement.

Volunteer tutor Carol Rudofski works with a learner at one of Rend Lake College's tutoring locations in the area. There are rewarding opportunities available as a volunteer tutor through RLC's Adult and Literacy Program. Call 437-5321, Ext. 1342 to find out how to help.

Whittington says, "As a tutor, you will help improve society, gain professional experience, and most importantly, make a difference in someone's life."

She also mentioned that activities are held every other month, from training sessions to get-togethers, like a cookie party for the volunteers. Tutoring can change someone's life and be very rewarding for the volunteer.

For more information, or to register as a volunteer tutor, call Whittington at 618-437-5321, Ext. 1342.

ed School is open every weekend in October, as well as on Halloween.

Next is Marion's Haunted Barn. This is not a place for anyone who has a fear of clowns or crazy farmers with a thrill of torture and murder. Admission is only $12 and it is open every weekend in October.

Jaycee's Haunted House in Mt. Vernon is located at the Old Train Depot on the east side of town. It's an attraction for all ages with an admission price of only $7 that goes toward the club's many charity endeavors throughout the year. Jaycee's Haunted House is open every weekend in October. Lastly, there's Talon Falls in Paducah, Ky. Its famous four attractions consist of a zombie outbreak, haunted hayride, dead-end haunted house, and a freak-show carnival. All four of these scary haunts come at a price of $50. However, get vour hands on a Hardee's Talon Falls Promotional Cup and the tickets come at a price of only $40. Talon Falls is open every weekend in October, as well as on Hallow's Eve and Halloween.

With all these options surrounding Southern Illinois this October, making plans for Halloween this year should be easier than ever before. Whether it is to one of Illinois' more local haunts or the more famous attractions in St. Louis, everyone is sure to have a good time this fall. Happy Halloween!

Check out Banned Books in the LRC

BY BETH MANDRELL

he library observed Banned Books Week, Sept. 24-28.

According the American Library Association, Banned Books Week "is an annual event celebrating the freedom to read. Typically held during the last week of September, it highlights the value of free and open access to information."

When a book is challenged by an individual or a group it is usually done to restrict the use of that book within a library. The RLC Learning Resource Center upholds the Freedom to Read statement which means that we believe patrons should be able to choose what they read and without restriction to materials added to our collections because someone has challenged them. Many well-known books have been challenged. A few examples are "For Whom the Bell Tolls", "Gone with the Wind," the Harry Potter series, "Twilight," "The Color Purple," "The Grapes of Wrath," and "To Kill a Mockingbird."

The LRC has a display of banned books. Drop by and check them out! Students can find more information about banned/challenged books and the Freedom to Read by going online to www.ala.org.
