State: Campus will go smoke free by summer

CLOCKTOWER CHRONICLE STAFFWRITER end Lake College will go smoke free on July 1. Last year, former Gov. Pat Quinn signed the Smoke-Free Campus act, making it both a new law and a new reality that smoking will be banned, both indoor and outdoor, at public colleges and universities, starting July 1, 2015.

RLC President Terry Wilkerson said the college's board will consider a new policy at a future meeting. Wilkerson said the policy basically reads that the college will "adhere to and enforce" all state mandated regulations contained in the Smoke Free Campus Act.

The act prohibits all students, staff, or visitors from being able to carry, smoke, burn, inhale, or exhale any kind of lighted pipe, cigar, cigarette, e-cigarette or any kind of lighted smoking equipment on campus. The ban applies to every part of campus, including parking lots. However, those who wish to can smoke inside their personal vehicles.

RLC is taking the initiative to help smokers quit. Morgan Gravatt is a representative of the RLC Worksite Wellness Committee and a member of a task force for implementing the Smoke Free Campus Act at RLC. She encourages students and staff to make July 1 more ore than 150 students from 10 area high schools competed last month at the 2015 Worldwide Youth in Science and Engineering (WYSE) Academic Challenge Regional at Rend Lake College. Those who advanced will compete at the sectional level this month for the chance to make the state finals April 13-16 in Champaign.

Schools with similar enrollment compete against one another in divisions. Christopher High School, Wayne City High School, Zeigler-Royalton High School, Sesser-Valier High School, Waltonville High School, and Webber Township High School make up Division 300. Division 700 consists of Benton Consolidated

High School, Pinckneyville Community High School, and Hamilton County Senior High School. The lone Division 1500 school in the RLC regional is Mt. Vernon Township High School.

"The Math and Sciences Division at Rend Lake College is pleased to continue to host the Regional WYSE event in cooperation with the University of Illinois," said Andrea Banach, RLC Dean of Math and Sciences. Mining in Society Merit Badge workshop returning to RLC

RLC PUBLIC INFORMATION oy Scouts will once again team up with the Rend Lake College Mining and Industrial Department to give local scouts a chance at the new Mining in Society merit badge. The classroom aspect of the workshop will meet at the RLC Coal Mine Training Center from 9 a.m. – 4 p.m., Saturday, March 21. Local scouts will get some hands-on experience with coal mining, an effort aimed to teach the boys about different career opportunities. There will be several guest speakers and activities focusing on mining enterprises in the state or region, understanding the hazards a miner may encounter while in an active mine, reviewing dangers someone might encounter in an abandoned mine, and many other top-

"I was personally gratified because I've been doing a lot with the Boy Scouts for many years. At the end, they were all saying it was the most fun merit badge they'd ever worked on."

Boy Scouts will then travel to a Knight Hawk Coal mine for a tour of the faciliwork in criminology through the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) Scientific Investigation Division, Doscher became an expert witness for the LAPD in crime scene investigations, toxicology, narcotics, and blood alcohol. She also helped lead the crime laboratory to accreditation by the American Society of Crime Lab Directors.

During the presentation, Doscher shared tips of the trade with RLC students interested in a career in law enforcement. She also talked through several cases she worked with the LAPD, letting students ask questions and make educated guesses based on the information she gathered as a forensic analyst.

One high-profile case she spoke about was the O. J. Simpson murder case, of which she caught the tail-end at the beginning of her criminology career with the LAPD. She said the changes she saw first-hand were huge in all areas of law enforcement.

"Everything changed after that case, from the way we presented ourselves to the training we received," said Doscher. "We had more money to purchase new and updated equipment, and for our departments to send us out for training. One of the biggest things we learned was how to write documents of a crime scene, while you're on the scene, with the idea they're going straight to court right afterward."

Doscher also spoke about her doctorate degree and the idea behind creating a new standardized deception detection technique to help law enforcement during interrogations and witness interviews. If successful, Doscher says the technique will aid in investigations, and possibly reduce false confession rates, help detect credible eye witnesses, and close more cases.

"My research is the first of its kind to be used to support law enforcement in reducing re-victimization," said Doscher. "It's a method that I'm hoping will be used by police officers to interview suspects and eyewitnesses for deception. I'm trying to prove a theory as to why this method will work and for it to become a screening tool for officers to use during investigations."

She didn't delve into details as many of the RLC Criminal Justice students will have the chance to participate in the research as test subjects. Not only will they help Doscher with her technique and research, but they will in turn be introduced to theories and methodologies in investigative psychology, as well as see first-hand the entwining of law enforcement's multiple disciplines.

At the end of the presentation, Doscher was available for students to ask questions about the criminal justice industry. In a final moment of advice, she added, "If you're looking to get rich or if you're looking to get famous, you're in the wrong profession, but if you're here to protect and serve, you'll do just fine."

than just the day campus goes smoke free. She wants them to set it as the date they go smoke

"The FDA says that smoking kills 1,200 people every day in the United States and if you don't quit you have a one-intwo chance of dying from a smoke-related disease," said Gravatt.

News of the law is getting mixed response on campus.

"Secondhand smoke is a public health problem, so I am pleased by this new policy," said Associate Professor of Sociology Sarah Draper.

Student athletes Javon Brown-Stribling (baseball) and criminal justice major Valencia Chandler (basketball) both said cigarette smoke gives them

MMM! HINTS OF BRIMSTONE AND

headaches and that they were pleased to learn of the new law.

Devin Williams, a sophomore majoring in automotive technology, sees this as an infringement of his rights.

"I don't like that very much," Williams said. "When smokers go without nicotine for a while they get irritable and they can be more mouthy ... to teachers, so their jobs would be harder."

Wilkerson said the college wrote for a grant to help defray costs of educating the campus about the new law and promoting smoking cessation. Kathy Evans works with Title III Health Studies Support at RLC. She said the college was awarded a Legacy Grant from the state of Illinois. Evans says the money will help fund awareness initiatives and install "No Smoking" signs on campus that are required by the law.

Wilkerson said the primary concern right now is increasing awareness of the new law. He said enforcement and punishment for offenders will most likely be phased in.

"Right now, we're going to start with letting everybody know, and reminding them," he said, adding that campus security will be the ones involved with that process for the most part.

"We'd like everybody to help us enforce that a little bit," said Wilkerson.

There are a variety of online resources for students wishing to quit smoking. Methods, products and benefits are readily available with a quick Google search. Top results include Smokefree.gov and Cancer.org.

Center also offers softball and baseball lessons to anyone over the age of 6. For more information about details and dates of the lessons, contact O'Daniel at (270) 703-6790; (618) 437-5321, Ext. 1279; or odanielt@rlc.edu.

Bright future

Middle infielder Sammie Bright, CENTER, of Zeigler signed a national letter of intent to play softball at Rend Lake College. She is pictured with, FROM LEFT, her mother and father Lisa and John Bright. Head Coach Dave Ellingsworth said Bright will be a great addition to the Lady Warriors team because she has the option to play several different positions.
